SUBJECT: Studies in Intelligence Project
Report of Activities
18 January - 25 January 1956

25 YEAR RE-REVIEW

25X1 1. Late last week, I met with [redacted], ORR, to 25X1 discuss the possibility of his doing a Study on intelligence
25X1 research methodology [redacted]
25X1 [redacted] I had been 25X1 introduced to [redacted] by three different people: by John 25X1 [redacted] and I had already read a 25X1 paper prepared by [redacted] in 1953 on substantially these sub-25X1 jects, but directed exclusively to economic research. [redacted]
25X1 has only just returned from an overseas assignment and is busy settling down with a new branch in ORR. Just as soon as he sees some daylight, he promises to prepare a preliminary outline for us -- possibly in the next two months.

25X1 2. Following [redacted] suggestions, I am at work
25X1 revising and cutting the [redacted] paper on Economic Intelli-25X1 gence. I am trying to cut the parts specifically on the mission of ORR and, thus, highlight the parts with general relevance to intelligence research and analysis. When this revision is complete, I will probably want to check it out with [redacted] 25X1 (If I were to go [redacted] to see him, I would also like to use 25X1 this opportunity to talk with his [redacted] colleagues about the 25X1 possible exploitation of their working papers in the Studies series.)

25X1 3. Advance copies of the second issue have been handed to:
25X1 Mr. Baird, [redacted] and the authors.
25X1 Distribution should begin tomorrow. As usual [redacted] seems 25X1 to have done a splendid printing job, and [redacted] cover design has been generally praised. Both of them -- as well as Messrs.
25X1 [redacted] -- have been of tremendous help in preparing this second Study.

4. I sat in on the DD/S TLO meeting on 24 January and explained the Study dissemination plan. I was also able to strike a blow or two for the series generally and it may be that we will be getting contributions from DD/S officers on such subjects as management, career planning, and intelligence administration.
